EDITORIAL

Korea-And World Peace

HAVENTS in Koren provide in acid EL comment, if one were needed, on the Communist peace campaign. None realises this more than the Communists themselves. Both the newspapers of Moscow and the Soviet radio stations have been working overtime in an attempt to establish that the South Koreans were the aggressors, that the United States is warmongering and that the resolutions of the Security Council are illegal. Unless this ridiculously false version of the facts quickly gains credence, if not in the world at large, at least in the Eastern bloc, the Russian peace campaign will be entirely discredited among all but zealots and eccentries. The Kremlin's official peace line has been, therefore, widened to include the "Hands Off Korea" alogan. The Appeal of Stockholm as the peace campaign is called, because it was adopted by the World Committee of the Partisans of Peace at its congress in Stockholm in March, contained two clauses. It demanded the absolute prohibition of the atom bomb and it required that the government which first used it should be branded as a war criminal. It is well known, of course, that the Partisans of Peace Committee is one of the many organisations used by Moscow to pursue its purposes. The principal nim of the "Appeal" is to persuade the world that Soviet policy is one of pence. It is not new. Pence was one of the magic words with which Lenin came to power in 1917. But who believes that the Communist aim is sincere, that Russia is not exploiting the idea of peace In the interests of world revolution? However, whatever the intentions of its promoters, the Stockholm appeal has apparently had some degree of success throughout the world. No significance is likely to be attached to the support given to it by the peoples behind the Iron Curtain. The majority of those who signed it in Poland, Hungary and Czechoslovakia were probably only displaying the wisdom of conformity. But indications are that thousands of people in Western Europe signed it who were not Communists. Five million signatures were collected in France, including those of many prominent artists, writers and lawyers. The reason is probably not difficult to find. The iden of peace naturally has an almost irresistible force for human beings, as the fourteen men in the Politburo well know. Many obviously have signed the Stockholm appeal without looking to the motives behind it, in a genuine hope that it might prevent another war. They are not open to criticism; if you look askance, it must be at the Soviets for committing such an abuse of confidence. But Moscow's "peace campaign" has not been successful in all parts of Europe. In the British Isles, it was virtually ignored, following the Government's condemnation of the activities of "peace rackets." The attempt to carry the East German peace front campaign into Western Germany has been equally unsuccessful, especially since Herr Ulbricht, the puppet premier, signed away German territory in agreeing to the Oder-Neisse frontier with Poland. In Italy, Count Sforza showed his opinion by refusing permission for delegates to attend a world congress of the Partisans of Peace at Genoa. There are some people who see that Picasso's peace-dove looks more like a vulture.

The theme of the textile exhibition was based upon Covent Garden, and was intended as a tribute to the Sadler's Wells Ballet. The graceful Regency house, which is the home of the Design Centre, has taken on a theatrical appearance for this occasion. Contemporary play-bills grace the walls, and in the entrance, a large mural depicts Covent Garden in 1830. But in one respect things different in the stony mountains of Korea from what the British found in the barren highlands of Greece: the fighting qualities of the local troops are not the same.

Many even of those Americans who had served in Korea were shocked by the rapidity of the South Koreans' defeat. There were no Evzones outside Scoul.

It is now known in Washington, a large percentage of the South Korean army had vanished. Some had died bravely. Some were wounded and some missing. But most had simply "gone over the hill."

This is the main reason why General MacArthur decided after a brief personal look at the front to throw American ground troops in as well as air and naval strength.

WASHINGTON, JULY 16.
AS THE KOREAN FIGHTING ENTERED ITS FOURTH WEEK MILITARY MEN CONTINUED CONFIDENT OF EVEN-TUAL SUCCESS IN REPELLING THE INVADERS AND ONE OF THEIR REASONS WAS FAITH IN AIR POWER. THEY CON-TEND, THAT THE RESULTS OF AIR BLOWS WILL SHOW UP MORE AND MORE IN THE WEEKS TO COME.

Popular public belief in the ability of aeroplanes to halt aggression was all but shattered in the first three weeks of the Korean conflict, but military experts contend this sentiment has swung too far.

WAR MAY LAST FOR 9 MONTHS

Washington, July 16. American troops face "six to nine months" of fighting Tydings, chairman of the South Korea. Senate Armed Services Committee, said today.

Senator Tydings' estimate presumably reflected the view of top military leaders, including General MacArthur. The Senator (Democrat, Maryland) made the statement in a transcribed interview over Baltimore radio station.

It was the first specific foreeast by a top official on how long it might take to achieve the eventual victory which is taken for granted here.

Defence authorities acknowledged that neither air nor sea power alone or combined could halt aggression, but they commented that, from being vastly overrated, the air force has suddenly become underrated in popular feeling.

The peak of confidence probably came after the success of the Berlin airlift. The depth of distrust followed last week as the Reds rolled forward several miles daily despite air strikes at them.

In the United States' first efforts of this kind, fast planes were used. They proved unsultable for three reasons: 1. They came from Japan and consequently had only a short time to work over tai-

ENGLAND'S CAPTAIN? PETER DITTON

London.

Keep an eye upon Doug Insole, young amateur captain of Essex. He appears set for a big future in International cricket, and as sound a judge as the Editor of Wisden feels he may captain the next MCC team to Australia.

Writing in the 87th and current edition of this most famous of all cricket annuals, published this week, he says a leader will have to be found from among some of the younger University players, "unless Norman Yardley can be persuaded to return to the exacting task which he carried out under the extreme difficulties inseparable from Tests played too soon after the war."

He goes on to suggest that, of the young Varsity players, Doug Insole, "a strong forcing batsman and fine fieldsman with attractive personality", is the first choice. Certainly England could do a lot worse than to give Insole a trial before the present series against the West Indies is concluded.

Rio De Janeiro, July 16. Uruguay today became the 1950 world soccer champion by defeating Brazil 2-1 in one of the most dramatic games in football listory. Brazil needed only a tie to clinch the world crown and it seemed for a long while that it would get it.

The first half ended in a 0-0 tie and the hopes of the 160,000 tense fans went up when in the first minute of the second half right-winger Friaca scored the first goal for Brazil.

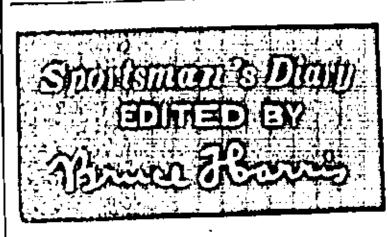

But the Brazilians could not [withstand the steadily mounting pressure of the Uruguayans and at 20 minutes inside-left Schafflano score the tying goal. Fourteen minutes later, the Brazilian hopes crumbled when right-winger Ghiggla beat Barbosa for the second time and Uruguay went into a lead that Brazil could never overcome.

The match was a ding-dong Askew, of Britain, with a leap bettle from beginning to end, and of 23 ft. 2-1/4 ins. Harry Whittle, it was not until the last head that the issue was decided. The score went up by singles in the first six heads, each rink chalking up three. Then the champions for ged ahead to 12-5 on the 12th head. An excellent recovery by Ribeiro's rink gave them nine shots on the next three heads, and a lead of 14-12. The champions retaliated and again took a slender lead of 16-14 on the 17th and 17-16 on the 20th head.

On the deciding head, A. P. Pereira laid a beautiful first shot jack-high, a few inches from the jack. No alteration was made to the position until A. A. Lopes with his second wood trailed the jack a few inches back to give his side a lie of two shots.

Truman To Report To Congress

Washington, July 16.

President Truman is expected to report to Congress and the nation on the Korean war this week, so preparing the way for later requests for limited mobilisation of manpower and industry.

The general belief here is that the President will also request limited economic control to meet expected increased military spending,

The President last week told a press conference that he was considering naking Congress for leave to make an address on the Korean Situation,

He also said that he had under consideration manpower and industrial mobilisation and the possibility of asking Conging for more money for millitary defence purposes. CONFERENCE

The belief that the President was almost ready to tell the nation the facts about Korea was strengthened yesterday when he had a 45 minutes' conference with the Army Chief of Staff, General Lawton Collins, and the Air Force Chief of Staff, General Hoyt Vandenberg, on their return from a Far East tour.

The President has consistently taken an optimistic view the outcome of the Korean iduation.

It was believed here that any report from him to the nation would stress that there was no reason for pegalmism deplte early United States revenies .- Reuter.
